

$25,000 READY TO FIGHT CEDAR RUST, MENACE OF APPLE ORCHARDS

For Protection of Apple Orchards Whose Passage Was Secured by Senator Bouton and Assemblyman Van Wageningen Becomes a Law—Red Cedar Trees Can Now Be Extirminated.

Outside of apple growers, only a small proportion of the population of New York state realize the importance of the "cedar rust" bill which was passed by both houses of the last legislature through the unceasing efforts of Senator Arthur F. Bouton of Delaware county and Assemblyman Simon B. Van Wageningen of Ulster county and has now become a law with the approval of the governor.

Senator Bouton's Explanation.
"Cedar rust" formed the subject of several jests during the legislative session on the part of those who are ignorant of its nature, its danger and the great amount of damage it has caused among apple orchards, especially in the Hudson river valley.

These matters, and an explanation for the necessity of the bill becoming a law, were clearly set forth by Senator Bouton, who pointed out that the bill provided for the control of the disease commonly known as "cedar rust," which is a serious menace to apple orchards in the Hudson river valley, particularly in the counties of Columbia, Greene and Ulster, and apple growers in other counties of the Hudson river valley also fear the disease may spread into their sections, if it has not already done so.

"Cedar rust," said Senator Bouton, in a memorandum filed with the governor, in which he pointed out that the Van Wageningen bill was identical with a bill introduced by Mr. Ryan, "is a plant disease having two hosts, viz., the red cedar, commonly known as the 'juniper,' and the other the apple tree."

"The red cedar develops what is known as a cedar apple. This opens during certain months of the year and the spores spread to and attack the apple trees and their fruit. Experience in other states, and a study and investigation made by experts, have shown that there is only one remedy, and that is to cut down the apple orchards or destroy the red cedars, the red cedars are of comparatively little value, being of slow growth and usually valuable for nothing larger than fence posts. The conservation department states that for every red cedar destroyed a white cedar (Arbor Vitae) could be furnished by the state to replace the red cedar."

"Several conferences have been held between representative apple growers of the Hudson river valley, the Conservation Department and the Department of Farms and Markets. Prior to the introduction of this bill in the legislature a conference was held between quite a large number of the representative apple growers from the Hudson river valley, and Commissioner Pyrie of the Department of Farms and Markets; Dr. Atwood, the pomologist in that department; Dr. House, state botanist; Conservation Commissioner McDonald and Superintendent of Forests Pettis.

At this conference Senators Rabenold, Ryan, Webb and myself and Assemblyman Van Wageningen were also present. The conclusion arrived at this conference was that the suppression of the plant disease, properly belonged in the Department of Farms and Markets. The bill was therefore prepared to embody the conclusions arrived at at this conference.

"The understanding is that the apple growers are to cooperate to eradicate the red cedars on their own farms and develop community committees; the Conservation Commission to cooperate as stated above, by providing Arbor Vitae trees to replace the juniper, and looking after any conservation features that may develop."

"The bill provides state authority, which may be exercised with proper discretion by means of which the serious menace to the production of apples, which is an important commercial industry in the Hudson river valley, can be suppressed. The Hudson river valley is so close to New York city that the production of apples and the protection of apple growers is of tremendous importance to the people of the city of New York as well as the entire state."

The clear and concise explanation by Senator Bouton of the Van Wageningen bill in urging that it be made law, will be fully appreciated by the general reader as well as the apple grower and owner of even a few apple trees, who is vitally interested.

Provisions of the Bill.
The text of the law in which every apple grower is interested is as follows:

Section 171-a. Control of the plant disease commonly known as "cedar rust." For the purpose of suppressing and controlling cedar rust, the following provisions shall apply:

1. Fruiting apple districts defined. Districts where the cultivation of apples is carried on extensively, and is an important commercial enterprise, may be determined and designated as "fruiting apple districts," and in such districts the provisions of this section shall apply. The location and extent of such districts shall be determined by the state commissioner of farms and markets and the conservation commission.

2. The red cedar tree declared a public nuisance. Owning, planting, growing, propagating or keeping alive and standing upon any land or premises, or of any red cedar tree or trees within the territorial limits of any fruiting apple district created as provided in this section is hereby prohibited, and any such red cedar tree or trees are hereby declared a public nuisance and may be destroyed by the agents of the state department of farms and markets.

3. Quarantine regulations. The state department of farms and markets shall have the authority, by order, to establish quarantine districts in any part or parts of the state. In such districts it may prohibit the possession of any red cedar tree, trees, or the planting, growing, propagating, cultivating, selling or keeping alive of any red cedar tree or trees. It may also prohibit the transportation of any red cedar tree or trees from or to any quarantine district within the state, or from any area or locality outside the state to any point within the state. Such prohibition shall be effective on and after the tenth day from the date of its order made with respect thereto. On the making of such an order the state commissioner of farms and markets shall cause a certified copy of the same to be filed in the office of the clerk of each county affected by such quarantine, and shall give such other notice thereof as he may deem necessary.

4. Authority to eradicate and compensation. Agents or employees of the state department of farms and markets may enter upon any land, in order to carry out the provisions of this section, and no action for trespass shall lie therefor. No compensation shall be allowed for any tree or trees destroyed, unless the owner of such lands shall file a claim for compensation with the state department of farms and markets within six months after the tree or trees are so destroyed, and the rate of compensation to be allowed upon such claim shall be determined by the state commissioner of farms and markets and the conservation commission after giving due consideration to any and all benefit or benefits which have accrued or may accrue to said claimant, or his property as an offset to the amount of any such claim.

$25,000 Appropriated for Work.
In order to carry out the beneficial program of destroying and controlling the destructive cedar rust, the second section of the bill provided as follows:

Section 2. In order to carry out the provisions of this act, the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000), or as much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, for personal service and other expenses, including printing and the expense of such means as the commissioner of farms and markets may determine to be advisable for disseminating information with reference to the plant disease commonly known as "cedar rust," or cedar rust, and any claim for compensation which may be allowed as provided in this act. No moneys herein appropriated shall be available for payment for personal service, except temporary service or labor, until a schedule of positions and salaries shall have been submitted to and approved by the governor, the chairman of the senate finance committee and the chairman of the assembly ways and means committee, and a certificate of such approval, and a certificate of the comptroller, the moneys herein appropriated shall be expended under the direction of the state commissioner of farms and markets, and shall be paid out of the state treasury upon the warrant of the comptroller upon the certificate of such commissioner.

MOVE MADE IN S. M. GRAY'S SUIT

His Counsel States There Was Deliberate Conspiracy in Transfer of Property to Daughter Ethel, Effect of Which Is to Leave Present Wife and Children Destitute When He Dies—Asks Jury to Determine Competency at Time of Signing Instrument.

When Judge Rosch opened supreme court on Thursday morning, the first matter that came up was a motion made by Judge Clearwater as counsel for Samuel M. Gray, in the action brought by him against his daughter, Ethel Gray, to settle issues of fact for the consideration of a jury in the action brought by Mr. Gray to set aside the instrument executed by him to his daughter, by which he conveyed to her his residence on Albany avenue, and stocks and bonds to the amount of $200,000.

Judge Clearwater said that Mr. Gray at the time of the beginning of the action was sixty-nine years of age; that he had been married for upwards of forty years; that his wife had died, and that his only heir at law and next of kin at that time, was his daughter, Ethel, who no longer was youthful, and who never had been married; that he was greatly depressed and disturbed by the death of his wife and by other causes, and had become highly nervous, weak and ill, and that while he was in that condition a proceeding by petition was begun in the supreme court, by his sister, instigated by his daughter and his brother, Charles F. Gray, to have him declared of unsound mind and incompetent to manage his affairs in consequence of his "unhappy and imbecile" arising from senile dementia and other infirmities, alleging also that he was utterly incapable and incompetent to transact business; that this proceeding was a conspiracy first to deprive him of his property, second to prevent his marriage to Miss Verma Moore, whom subsequently he married, and by whom he had a child, a boy; that on that petition, accompanied by affidavits of two physicians and of Arthur Elison and Florence Gray, the daughter of Charles F. Gray, an order had been granted by Judge Hasbrouck directing that notice of the presentation of the application and for the issuing of a commission to enquire into Mr. Gray's incompetency, be served upon him, that he was shocked, stunned and stupefied by the receipt of the said petition, and requested an adjournment, that the adjournment was refused, and that Walter N. Gill was appointed a commissioner by Judge Hasbrouck to enquire into his lunacy; that Mr. Gray was then told by persons acting in the interest of his daughter and his brother that unless he conveyed all his property to his daughter he would be confined in the insane asylum at Middletown for the rest of his life; that believing that statement to be true, and being apprehensive that he would be thus confined unless he executed the instrument presented to him, he signed it; that on recovering his health and realizing that he had been imposed upon, he began an action to set the whole matter aside, and to require his daughter to account for the large sums of money she had received under the instrument.

Judge Clearwater said that he desired the question of Mr. Gray's competency to execute the instrument, and the character of his condition at the time he executed it to be tried before a jury. Judge Jenkins, who represented Ethel Gray, vigorously opposed the application for a jury trial. He said that under the instrument Ethel Gray agreed to take care of her father during his lifetime, and that was a sufficient

200 Left To Enforce Prohibition in State; New York Has An Old Time Celebration, Canfield Calls On State Peace Officers

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, June 2.—Signing of the repeal of the New York state prohibition (Mullan-Gage law) by Governor Alfred E. Smith today reduced the number of prohibition enforcement officers in this state from 25,000 to 200.

While the state law was in effect, city, county and state police detectives were obliged by law to enforce the Volstead act. Now, with the state dry law off the books, the whole task is in the hands of the federal authorities.

New York city—at least that section of it represented by Broadway and the "roaring forties"—bathed Governor Smith's action with delight. Men and women gathered in the big hotels and restaurants last night held an old time celebration. Federal officials here frankly admitted they were surprised by the

FIRE CRIPPLED TELEPHONE CABLE

The cold storage plant fire at Port Ewen destroyed a very important telephone cable, crippling service both toll and local in that direction this morning. The Telephone Company was obliged to twist 150 feet of new cable to connect up some of the important lines. The forces of men were very lucky in repairing the broken insulation in this short space of time, the important lines being ready for service at about 11 o'clock. Late this afternoon it is expected that the task will be completed in full.

The destruction of this cable prevented calls to the south which are unusually heavy following a holiday and on Saturday morning and also crippled the service through the Catskills, all along the Ulster and Delaware railroad.

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD ORGANIZED

Under an amendment to the state civil service law the terms of the members of the local municipal service commission expired the first of June, and Mayor Crane reappointed Harry S. Watts, James S. McAndrews and Walter J. Weeks. They met Friday night and reorganized by re-electing Mr. Watts, president and Harold L. Van Deusen secretary of the board.

consideration for the transfer of his property to her, that cases which he cited held that under the circumstances disclosed by the papers in the Gray case the issues should not be confused by answers of the jury to questions submitted to it; that the law did not attempt to define the mental ability or acumen necessary to qualify a person to make a contract, and that if Mr. Gray possessed sufficient intelligence to comprehend the condition of his property, and the scope and meaning of the provisions of the contract, the contract should be sustained. Judge Clearwater said that when the facts came to be developed, they would show a deliberate conspiracy to defraud, of which he did not consider it necessary to disclose, but the effect of it was to leave Mr. Gray's present wife and child destitute in event of his death. At the close of a spirited argument, Judge Rosch took the papers, said counsel might hand in briefs, and he would pass upon the question.

VOLSTEAD LAW BECOMES CHIEF ISSUE FOR CAMPAIGN NEXT YEAR

Both Parties Agree That Governor Smith's Approval of Repealer Has Brought This About and That His Statement Outlines Platform Plank on Which Liberal Democrats Will Present Him For President—Is Shrewdly Drawn, All Admit.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, June 2.—The Volstead law, overnight, has become one of the paramount issues, if not the chief issue, of the 1924 campaign.

Political leaders of both wet and dry persuasion, Republicans and Democrats alike, joined today into this interpretation of the situation arising from New York's repeal of the state enforcement law and the remarkable statement of principles with which Governor Smith accompanied his approval of the repeal bill.

The immediate physical effect of the repeal itself on the prohibition situation in New York is not regarded so important, for the federal government will simply reinforce its regiment of dry agents in the state, and enforce prohibition probably as well as it has ever been enforced in New York—tightly.

It was the statement of Governor Smith, setting forth his reasons for approving the bill that was considered most significant in the capitol today—outlining as it did a national platform based on liberalization of the Volstead law and the right of sovereign states to write their own dry laws within the boundaries prescribed by the eighteenth amendment.

The platform on which Governor

Smith stood in signing the repeal bill will immediately be adopted by the wet and made the basis of a new fight in the sixty-eighth congress next December. When that fight falls as it most certainly will fall, because of the still preponderant dry strength in house and senate, then the undaunted wets will carry it into the campaign of 1924 which not only elects an entirely new congress but a president as well.

This was the picture drawn today by political leaders, two years at least of intermittent fighting over the wet and dry issue in which not the slightest amendment but the Volstead law will be the bone of contention.

That Governor Smith will go to the Democratic convention as a candidate for nomination with the backing of the liberal element was accepted today as already assured. And that he will have a considerable strength also is regarded as certain.

From a political standpoint, the lengthy statement of Governor Smith, printed from coast to coast today, was regarded as shrewdly drawn.

Not only does it place him definitely in the forefront of the "Liberal" movement of the country as regards prohibition, but his statement also is designed to secure approval, particularly in the solid Democratic south.

COLD STORAGE PLANT BURNED

O. R. Hiltbrant's Plant, Which Had Capacity of 10,000 Barrels, Wiped Out by Fire Early Today—Kingston Fire Department Summoned.

The large cold storage plant on the farm of O. R. Hiltbrant, just outside of Port Ewen, was destroyed by fire about 3 o'clock this morning. Efforts to get Mr. Hiltbrant on the telephone were not successful and the origin of the fire is not known. The plant was used for the storage of apples and had a capacity of from 8,000 to 10,000 barrels. The Kingston Fire Department was asked to send assistance and the pumpmen went to the scene. Owing to the fact that the nearest water supply was a cistern it was impossible to get the fire under control. The fire could be plainly seen from this city and attracted the attention of many. Whether the loss is covered by insurance is not known.

Daniel Cramer of this city to date holds the speeding record of the city, but to obtain it cost him $20 when arraigned before Judge Schrick in police court this morning. It is said that Kuehn in order to catch him had to speed his motorcycle at 57 miles.

Fred Burzee of No. 35 Gill street was arrested Friday afternoon by Motorcycle Officer Soper on a charge of speeding 30 miles an hour on Broadway in his automobile. This morning Burzee acted in such an irrational manner that the police department called the matter to the attention of City Judge Harry E. Schrick before Burzee was arraigned in police court.

Judge Schrick after asking Burzee some questions committed him to the Ulster county jail for two days to give the physicians an opportunity of examining Burzee as to his mental condition. Later in the morning the examination was made and Burzee declared insane and committed to the state asylum at Middletown. Dr. Frank A. Johnston and Dr. Walter D. Hasbrouck made the examination.

ZOO NEWS

"I'm a black cobra snake, and my home used to be in South Africa," hissed one of the snakes in the zoo. "I can spit forth a deadly poison and can almost destroy a person's eyesight if they're not careful. "But here in the zoo they never come to fix my cage without wearing goggles, as they know about me and so I cannot hurt them. "Of course it is impossible for me to hurt anyone who just looks at me from without, for my cage has glass in front of it.

"Oh, yes, they see to it in the zoo that no one gets hurt. I have poisonous fangs, too. In fact, I'm what you'd call a poisonous snake. "Once one of the keepers did get some poison in his eye and he said it felt as though he had had a hot poker put to his eye.

"But he did not touch his eye, only he rushed to a water faucet and thoroughly sprayed his eye with water which saved his eyesight. "We'll always aim directly for the eye if we can. But, as I say, they make very sure now that we can't do any harm here.

"Many of my relatives live in India, but I'm a nice six-footer from Africa. "Others might not say I was nice but they cannot help but say that I'm six feet in length."

"I'm a yellow cobra," hissed another snake, "and I've a first cousin here with me, too."

"I've just arrived and I'm a green snake," hissed another.

"There are two of us who've just come," said a puff adder snake.

"There are five of us," said a leopard tortoise.

"I'm a ten-foot python, and that is a real size!"

And then ten spike-tail lizards and three African monitors and some other snakes all said that they had just been brought to the zoo.

"I've a good appetite," said King Cobra. "I am not against eating my own kind."

"I'm a new baby buffalo," said a buffalo baby to his mother in another part of the zoo.

"Of course I was never several months ago but I'm young now."

"Yes, dear Baby Buffalo," said his mother, "you're young now. But you were never several months ago, as you say yourself."

"They say there is a baby Russian porcupine in the zoo, but I can't see anything wonderful about that. Now a buffalo is something like."

"Something like what, Mother?" asked Baby Buffalo.

"Something like a buffalo, in fact, exactly like a buffalo," said Mother Buffalo.

"But, really, my dear," she added, "the expression means that it is something worth speaking about."

"When a creature will say: "That is something like," it is a saying or expression meaning that that thing is pretty fine."

"There are lots of us in the zoo," the snakes kept hissing in their houses.

"Getting to be a Big Kangaroo."

"And there are new ones brought here from time to time."

"Hiss-hiss, hiss, hiss, there should be plenty of snakes."

"I can't crawl into your pouch any more," said Baby Kangaroo to his mother.

"I'm getting to be a big kangaroo, now, mother."

"Yes, Kangaroo child, you're almost six months old. People say it is funny the way you stick your head into my pouch and your feet and legs stick out behind."

"I don't think it would be sensible any other way. You wouldn't want to get in feet first."

"Well, in another six months you will be entirely looking after yourself."

"Yes, then you will be able to look out for yourself."

"They say that they're going to bring a platypus here soon. It's from our country (Australia), and it has a duck's bill and hatches eggs and then cares for its children in a most affectionate way. It's an animal, too."

"Platypus is about the size of a weasel, and is a curious mixture of bird and animal."

"Platypus has a queer cousin named echidna—a duck-billed ant eater. Echidna is covered with spines instead of fur. Oh, there are some curious creatures in our country but that makes it interesting," ended the Kangaroo.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

A baked apple is always enjoyed. The following is unusual and nice for special occasions:

Prepare the apples, cutting a slice from the stem end and scooping out the contents just as it is done for apple cups.

Fill the cavities with the minced pulp and equal quantities of pecan meats and maraschino cherries, all cut in small pieces. Add one tablespoonful of sugar to each apple and bake until soft, but shapely. Serve with a tablespoonful of maraschino to each apple.

Raisin Salad.—Wash and dry one cupful of raisins; add one-quarter of a cupful of lemon juice and two cupfuls of apple, chopped. Arrange lettuce on a salad plate; heap on the apples and raisins and cover with a rich, highly-seasoned mayonnaise dressing. Garnish with nuts.

Ever-Ready Boiled Dressing.—Beat three or four eggs, or two egg yolks and three whites—the more yolks the richer will be the dressing. Measure the beaten egg and take the same amount of mild vinegar. Cook over hot water, heating and stirring until thick. Add salt and put away in a glass fruit jar. Add seasonings when the salad is to be served.

Pineapple Salad With Dressing.—Arrange slices of pineapple on lettuce and serve with the following dressing: Cook one egg yolk with one-half cupful of pineapple juice and a teaspoonful of lemon juice; cool and add two tablespoonfuls of olive oil and a cupful of seasoned cottage cheese.

Pot Roast.—Brown one pound of beef; cut in serving-sized pieces. In one tablespoonful of butter and flour. Place in a casserole, adding three onions, four carrots, sliced, and three slices of bacon. Pour over one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water; cover and cook two hours, basting every half-hour.

Celery and Beet Salad.—Slice boiled beets, cook celery and add a small amount of chopped onion. Sprinkle with salt and serve with a French dressing.

DE YOUNG'S MEMORIAL MUSEUM

A habit of collecting antiquities led Mr. M. H. DeYoung, a public-spirited citizen of San Francisco, to build a museum in which to house his own and other collections and present it to the city.

Two appropriate buildings of Egyptian style, each 140 feet wide and 510 feet long, joined by a broad corridor supporting a beautiful tower, compose this museum. Salmon-tinted, and set down amid pleasingly landscaped gardens in Golden Gate park, this ensemble presents an imposing appearance.

The forty-five galleries contain more than one million objects. Their value is fabulous. The extent, oddity, variety, and completeness of the displays is amazing.

There are priceless oil paintings from the brushes of the masters; engravings of great value from many countries and of many periods; the celebrated Kunz collection containing specimens of every type of precious and semi-precious stone; coins from practically every country on the globe; a collection of reproductions of the crown jewels of the world; a collection of drums, some of which may have called warriors to battle in far-off lands; samples of precious needlework and lace dating back to the Eleventh century; the great Dore vase of bronze, 10 feet tall, weighing about 8,000 pounds and valued at $250,000; tapestries, rich, rare, and beautiful; a pair of enormous lions in cloisonné, made for the Imperial palace at Peking, China; two giant bronze lanterns some ten feet tall, from the Temple of Nansan, Kobe.

The history of warfare of many nations is silently told by implements of destruction used from the time of the World War back to the days when men fought clad in armor. Here is a chair used by George Washington in 1789; there a Japanese teakwood cabinet 200 years old; yonder the bell (from the steamship Oregon) that clattered forth the news that California had been admitted to the Union, and a battered piece of wood from the vessel on which Napoleon sailed from Elbe to France. Mirroring the civilization of past centuries is a mummy which probably lived about 200 years B. C.; another is a beer bottle, it having been an ancient custom for mourners to preserve their tears as visible evidence of their grief. There is a collection of pipes from far-off lands that would make the mouth of any smoker run water, and other objects of a surprising nature too numerous to mention.

Merwin Is Awarded $900 For His Bees, Which Were Blighted By Tunnel Diggers' Blasts

Messrs. Kelly, Mayham and Shea, testified as witnesses in support of the commission appointed by Judge Howard to hear the claims connected with the Schoharie Tunnel, have filed their report in a number of cases the most important of them being that of John B. Merwin of Prattville for the loss of a large number of colonies of bees belonging to his apary at Prattville, as a result of the blasting by dynamite conducted by the employees of the Board of Water Supply in making rock excavations for the shaft of the Schoharie Tunnel. This case has attracted a great deal of attention not only in Greene, Delaware, Ulster and Schoharie counties, but among bee keepers throughout the United States, practically every apary publication in the country having re-printed the various articles that have appeared regarding the trial. William R. Jones Jackson B. Sells

Thirty-five millions in accounts and capital were involved in the failure of the New York Curb Exchange firm of Jones & Baker, of which William R. Jones and Jackson B. Sells were heads. The concern had branches in seven of America's principal cities, and its voluntary bankruptcy petition caused widespread consternation, for it did one of the most important businesses in the country. Jones is a former protégé of Charles A. Stoneham, president of the New York Giants baseball club and is a close friend also of Judge McQuade and many influential politicians. The failure of the firm followed closely publication in the New York American that its affairs were under investigation.

Health Scholarships Offered As Education Step By American Child Health Association Forces

DR. THOMAS D. WOOD MISS SALLY LUCAS JEAN

America is more and more awakening to the truth that the strength of a nation is the strength of its boys and girls. War with its physical examinations drove home the fact of our national need of increased health and strength. Statistics show that 30% of the school children of our country are undernourished. The American Child Health Association, believing that health is a matter of sound education, and that a greater creed can be spread through the world than the gospel of good health, has instituted a series of health scholarships. The sum of $10,000 has been allotted to these scholarships, which are to be awarded to teachers in service for training in health education. Conditions provide that the awards will include five fellowships of not more than $1,000 each and five of not more than $500 each. Several fellowships will also be awarded to teachers to defray their expenses on tours of observation to demonstrate centers of effective work in health education. Thomas D. Wood, M.D., of Teachers' College, Columbia University, is the chairman of the Scholarship Committee, and Miss Sally Lucas Jean, Director of the Department of Health Education of the American Child Health Association, will head the work for the association. Dr. Wood and Miss Jean announce that the purpose of these health scholarships is two-fold. In the first place, it is to help promising teachers and leaders in the field of health education to improve their professional qualifications for work in this field. In the second place, it is to stimulate the formation of adequate training courses in health education throughout the country, by urging Normal schools, colleges, universities and other training centers to take stock of the work offered by their institutions in subject matter and methods of health education, the opportunities for practice teaching in health education under supervision, and the opportunities afforded by their institution for healthful living, and supervision of the students' health. The basis of award, the American Child Health Association announces, will take into consideration the past achievements of the teacher in health education in his field, her plans for health education in the future, and documentary evidence regarding the quality of her work from outstanding educators in her community. The institutions to which the teachers are assigned will be required to meet certain standards determined by the Fellowship Committee. Fellowships and scholarships providing for a year's study will go into effect with the beginning of the school year, or in the fall of 1923. Summer school, Chautauqua and travelling scholarships will go into effect during the summer of 1923. Teachers who wish to compete for these awards are asked to send in their applications to the Committee on Teacher Scholarships and Fellowships of the American Child Health Association, 370 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

One-Armed Man's Feat.
There used to be a saying illustrative of the practically impossible, about trying to thread a needle while wearing boxing gloves. Almost in the same class, remarks a New York Sun writer, one might think would be the effort of a one-armed man to eat a grapefruit. Yet a one-armed man entered a downtown restaurant a few days ago, ordered grapefruit, and ate it. It would not be easy for a two-armed person to explain just how it was managed, much less to do it. But the general principle was to apply the pressure downward instead of sideways. The grapefruit did not slide off the plate and the diner got all the juice, or at least the usual amount.

Art of the Idol.
The idol is the product of a consciously artistic stage of civilization. Even the simplest pasturals—much more the subtle elaboration of social and heroic themes—imply an effort on the part of the poet to return to nature, and by means of highly developed processes of art to emphasize such of her features as seem to him beautiful. The idol exists for natural expression and not adornment. At the other extreme is the idol, which exists for adornment and minute detail and for personal expression of the mood with which the poet has invested nature.—C. M. Gayley.

Being Likable.
The recipe for making Likers calls for no rare material; all I need lies right before me and around me in the opportunities of doing truthful, just, kind things by those I deal with. The recipe calls for no rare element, and the mixing and the making take no one day in the week. There is baking, day, sweeping day, washing day, but no friend-making day. It is Monday's, Tuesday's, Wednesday's work, and lasts through Saturday and Sunday and the 23rd of February.—William C. Gannett.

Three-Coat Cold.
A "three-coat cold day" is a Chinese expression for severe cold. Some of our tramps and ragpickers know what it is to wear three coats or three trousers, and three hats; but that has nothing to do with the temperature. They have no homes and must carry all their belongings on their backs like a snail. The trouble is they sometimes carry other people's belongings, too. China contains vast coal deposits, almost unworked, however, and the Chinese pile up coals instead of coal on cold days.

Stair Climbing Wheelbarrow.
In the city of Changsha, China, they have a wheelbarrow which climbs stairs. Some distance ahead of the regular wheel there is another smaller one. In climbing over flagstone steps or bridges the handles of the barrow are lowered until the auxiliary wheel rises above the next higher step. Then the wheelbarrow, which often carries as much as 400 pounds, seesaws from wheel to wheel until the next level stretch of flagstones is reached.

K. H. S. NET MEN WIN AND LOSE

Defeat Albany High 4-3 but Bow to St. Stephen's Seconds 3-2—Jeered at Annandale.

The Kingston tennis players chalked up another victory Decoration Day morning when they beat Albany High School 4-3 in a fast match held at that city, but dropped a twilight match to St. Stephen's seconds the same day.

The match in Albany was by far the better of the two, the score being close throughout. Herzog played a good all around match, but the more experienced Albany man proved a little too strong for him. Clayton lost to Mills 2-6, 0-6. Clayton also played well, but he too, was outclassed.

Stelle won out against Knox 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. This singles match was very close. The left-handed proved a crackerjack and in all the sets gained a three point lead against the Kingston player, but Stelle came up from behind and with his good net work and wise placement beat him out.

The two captains, Mac Fadden and Hagie, played a speedy game. Three times deuce was called in the first game before Mac Fadden finally gained the two consecutive points to make the set his 9-7. Then Hagie came back and took a set 4-6. Mac Fadden won the final 6-2. "Deuce" showed his usual good brand of tennis and his victory was due to his outlasting his opponent and sticking to the game till the last. Mac Fadden's favorite drive figured largely in this match as it has done in many previous ones.

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE FAIR GROUNDS

Another Man To Be Employed—Water Again Available—Toilets, Dressing Rooms and Showers To Be Installed.

The directors of the Kingston Fair Grounds, Inc., and the management of the Colonial baseball club met Friday afternoon to discuss a number of needed improvements at the grounds. Work will immediately be commenced on these improvements and the field will be placed in shape so that there will be no further difficulty due to bad spots in the outfield. This morning the water main was connected up so that there is now water available for wetting down the diamond. This was attended to last season but during the winter the water main froze and the fact was not brought to the attention of the directors.

In addition to the man now employed in taking care of the grounds the Fair Ground management will put on another man who will care for the grounds and attend to the diamond and buildings. This man will be under the direction of the Fair Ground directors and will be used to keep the grounds in first class shape.

At the meeting it was also decided to commence immediately the installation of both men's and ladies' toilets, two sets of dressing rooms for players with hot and cold water showers.

With the employment of a second man the management hope to keep the grounds in excellent shape throughout the season.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 2, 1923.

The prediction of a "learned German" that in twenty years Germany will "dominate the world" will be regarded as inopportune by those busily lecturing France for being so foolish as to feel any concern about her future safety.

A hospital in New York will provide its wakeful patients with radio head sets "so that they can be lulled to sleep without taking opiates." No doubt some wakeful patients would prefer the rumble of the elevated as a choice of two evils.

June 17 will be the 250th anniversary of the discovery of the Mississippi. In celebration the Middle West is to have an interesting historical pageant, one feature of which will be a dramatic representation of the canoe journey of Marquette and Joliet down the great river.

Members of the American Socialist party in convention blame Soviet Russia for the fact that that party's membership has fallen from 118,000 in 1919 to 12,474 in 1923. "We have been fighting with Soviet Russia long enough," declared one of the spokesmen. Flirting with a masked foreign depotism by a self-styled party of the people is bad business no doubt, but the American Socialist party had previously issued invitations to its own funeral by its attitude during 1917 and 1918.

The editor of the New York Journal of Commerce, who scrapes the barrel to find some criticism of the Republican tariff policy, complains because our exports are not so great as they were during war years. That indicates to what lengths he is driven in condemnation of protection. Our exports have been increasing at an average of $44,000,000 a month since the Fordney-McCumber law was passed, but no one has ever had any idea that they would for some years to come run as high as they did when European nations were depending on us for things they were incapable of producing to meet the insatiable demands of war and the stocks cleaned out by the war. Be reasonable.

A bulletin from the State Department bearing on the Chinese bandit situation contains the following significant statement: "Up to the present time it is the Americans who have furnished all the supplies to all the foreigners." Every bit of food, bottled water, tents, and supplies of every sort that were sent to the bandits' prisoners came from American sources, although only a few of the prisoners were American citizens. The report brings a thrill of pride to all our people that the United States should be the first and only country in the world to send relief to the captives. Not only does the fact reveal the prompt response of the Federal government to all proper requests for aid from our citizens abroad, but it shows the willingness of the United States to help the nationals of other countries when their own governments are unable or unwilling to protect them.

EXIT DELMONICO'S.

After 95 years the famous New York restaurant, "Delmonico's," has passed out of existence. The New York World thinks that prohibition has "contributed chiefly to this issue of a struggle for continued solvency," and that it has been "the principal cause behind a lengthening list of vanished resorts," including Shanley's, Mouquin's, Murray's, the hotels Knickerbocker and Manhattan. "Lights of hospitality go out under the blue rule," says the World, "but the bootlegger thrives on the darkness." The Times is less sure of the "principal cause" of Delmonico's extinction. "Is the blame for its closing altogether due to prohibition?" it asks. "There were other famous restaurants before Delmonico's. Few lasted so long. Many of them passed before the eighteenth amendment came into being."

Whatever the chief cause, or the number of causes, the passing of Delmonico's is matter for regret. With its high culinary standards maintained for nearly a century, the famed old restaurant became somewhat of an institution, its very name an inspiration toward excellence in restaurants and hotels all over the United States. For more than three generations a dinner at Delmonico's was not merely a pleasure but a boast among the experienced from one end of the country to the other.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. I know a creek where there are trout at the lower end, but above a little fall of seven or eight feet there are none. Can the trout jump this, or is there any way I can get trout up to the other end of the stream?
2. What birds are responsible for the guano beds of South America?
3. Can you keep a water snake as a pet without its having a tank of water?

Answers in Monday's Nature Notes.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. If I keep caterpillars to watch them turn into cocoons, how should I take care of them?
A handy cage? an earth-filled flower pot, with a small jar of water sunk in the middle. In this put green twigs for food, stuffing cracks around their stems with cotton so that caterpillars can't drop into the water. Over the pot put a large glass lamp chimney whose lower rim is sunk in the dirt, and whose top is covered with cheesecloth. If you make a number of cages and don't want to buy chimneys, use large bottles, snapping off top and bottom by blinding on a kerosene soaked cord. Light this, and in a moment dip the jar in cold water, when the end will crack off.

2. I shot a gray squirrel and found it covered with little lumps that resembled warts, and soon after killed another in the same condition. Is this a disease and does it poison the meat?

The lumps in the flesh may be caused by some sort of tick, a mite that plunges its sucking parts into the body, and becomes swelled with the blood it sucks. Or if the lumps are entirely inside the skin, the trouble may be from some sort of botfly larva, which hatches from eggs laid on the body of the victim and immediately burrows into the flesh. Not necessarily poisonous, but we should not relish the flesh.

3. Where does the albatross nest?
There is no nest, a single egg being laid on bare rock, on island of the Southern Seas. The albatross protects the egg by packing a rim of mud and seaweed about it.

POPLAR TREES ARE UNPOPULAR

Introduced in City and Planted for Shade Trees Some Years Ago—Since Then the Roots Have Been Raising So Much Disturbance Trees Are Barred.

Not so many years ago the poplar tree as a shade tree was introduced in Kingston, and was widely planted in certain sections of the city by residents who admired the tree because it was a fast grower, maturing early and affording excellent shade to the house.

The trees, however, had hardly reached maturity when folks began to experience trouble with sewer mains and the house connections with the sewer which became clogged up. When the matter was investigated it was found that the roots of the poplar trees had worked their way through the joints in the tile sewer pipe causing a blockage, and necessitating the services of a plumber.

About three or four years ago the board of public works took up the question and at that time adopted an ordinance which prohibited the further planting of poplar trees along the city's streets. Since that time many residents who have had sewer trouble began to eliminate it by cutting down the poplar tree and substituting maple trees, which afford as much shade, although the trees do not grow as fast as the poplar. One advantage of the maple over the poplar is that the roots do not cover so much ground and are not as liable to cause sewer trouble.

Another example of the industry of the poplar in causing sewer trouble was brought to light this morning when a resident in Poughkeepsie decided to eliminate it by replacing his tile sewer pipe with cast iron pipe from the house to the street sewer believing that the sewer trouble was on his own premises and not in the street.

When the plumber came to investigate the matter he found that the stoppage was out in the street and the street department was asked to flush out the street sewer, which was done with the result that several armfuls of poplar roots that had worked into the sewer and blocked it were swept out and into manhole and shoveled out by the street employees.

It is said that most of the sewer trouble is found to be caused by poplar roots and householders who still have poplar trees planted in front of their homes for shade trees would be taking a wise step in cutting down the trees before they find it necessary to call in a plumber to their assistance—not but what the plumbers desire as much work as possible.

PHOENICIA.

Phoenicia, June 2.—L. Clark, who has been assistant superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Company here for five years, has tendered his resignation from this office and will be located hereafter at Kingston. Mr. Clark is a thorough going, painstaking man and the business under his jurisdiction has largely increased. The office staff regrets his going. He will be missed as one of the place as he always stood for the up-build and betterment of the place and gave his help.

Mrs. Clark was a very congenial and pleasant neighbor and an efficient worker in all the departments of the church organizations. The roomy glass front windows placed in the R. B. Longyear meat market makes one think they are on Broadway somewhere. A new line of goods not carried before has been added.

Memorial Day was a quiet one here. All seemed to feel the memory of the day and what it meant with a deeper significance.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith have opened a tea room and have every thing in order to give satisfactory accommodations.

The sewing class met with Mrs. E. Smith Tuesday evening. A very pleasant evening was spent. At the close dainty refreshments were served.

REFORMED CHURCH REPORTS TO SYNOD

As the time of the one hundredth and seventeenth synod of the Reformed Church in America, which meets in Asbury Park, N. J., on June 7, draws near, most encouraging reports continue to come in from the various organizations of the church.

The Women's Board of Domestic Missions have had a most successful year. Their Japanese work in New York city has made a large advance. At the 123rd Street Branch alone twenty-two were received into church membership and on Easter twelve were baptized at the 67th Street Branch. The work in the Kentucky mountains has also advanced and there is a larger enrollment of students than ever before and prayer groups and Bible study bands among the students followed by evangelistic meetings resulted in over sixty conversions. This board also carries on work among the Indians and there are 280 Indian church members at Winnebago alone. Another task of this board is to build parsonages for the weaker churches, supply pulpits, furniture and pay salaries of student and classical missionaries.

The Women's Board of Domestic Missions will conduct the usual morning prayer meetings for the ladies of the synod and will have charge of the morning program on ladies' day at synod, which is Tuesday, June 12. At that meeting the Rev. G. Watermiller will speak for the Indians; Miss Marie Mayskens of Annville, Kentucky, for Kentucky; Mrs. S. Simiau, wife of the Japanese missionary at New York, for the Japanese. Instead of the usual reception by the ladies of this board to the members of the synod on Saturday afternoon the reception will be held on Saturday evening and several new and interesting features will be added.

The board of education has also had a good year with 117 students under its care. Although the gifts to Central and Hope Colleges were slightly in advance of last year, they have not been enough to meet the needs of these institutions and they will probably close the year with a deficit.

The Board of Domestic Missions will show that a tremendous amount of work has been done and that in spite of reduced income the board will close the year without debt. The income, however, from the regular sources is slightly in advance of last year and the repayments to the church building fund exceeds for the first time the limits set for each year, namely, five per cent of the amount loaned to the churches. Plans are being made to push the work of organizing churches in the older fields of the church both east and west and a number of fields around New York city and in Michigan are under observation where no doubt missions or new churches will be organized in the near future. The work among the Hungarians and the Italians is prospering and the school at Brewton, Alabama, for colored people has had a most successful year.

The Women's Board of Foreign Missions has just had one of the most successful anniversary celebrations in its history at which over $2,000 was raised for the building of a home for the missionaries at Busra, Arabia. The total receipts of this board for the year was $62,877. Five new missionaries are under appointment from this board and three, Miss Brumler of Grand Rapids, Mich., Miss Borkman of Central College, Pella, Iowa, and Miss Matheson, and trained nurse from Denmark, will go out this autumn. Twenty new societies have been added to the roll of auxiliaries of this board, which will celebrate its fifteenth anniversary in 1925. This board will have charge of the program for the afternoon of ladies' day, at which time Mrs. DeWitt Knox will preside and a number of missionaries and new missionaries will speak.

On Monday afternoon, June 11, the report on the Board of Foreign Missions will be received. Pending the adoption of the report there will be addresses by the secretaries of the board, the Rev. W. L. Chamberlain, Ph.D., and F. W. Potter, and by the Rev. James Cantline, D. D., of Arabia. On Monday evening there will be a public meeting on behalf of foreign missions. The president of the synod will preside and the Rev. S. M. Zwemer, one of the noted missionaries of the church, will speak. There will be brief greetings from the newly appointed missionaries who will soon leave for their fields and the meeting will close with a charge to these missionaries by the Rev. Henry E. Cobb, D. D., president of the board.

The Metropolitan Hotel, as in years past, will be the headquarters of the synod. In addition delegates will be at the New Tenney, the Annesley, the Del Monte and the Kentucky. The delegates from a distance will arrive on Wednesday afternoon and those from nearby points will get in Thursday morning. There will be delegates from most of the northern states, ranging from Oak Harbor, Washington, an island off the Pacific coast to New York city.

Explosion at Highland.
An unexplained discharge of six sticks of dynamite in a shanty on the farm of Mrs. Mary Phillips in the "Little Italy" colony at Highland Tuesday night showered the vicinity with sticks and stones. The damage was slight and no one injured. The dynamite was a supply kept on hand for use in blasting tree stumps.

Walden Knife Strike Settled.
At a meeting of the New York Knife Works at Walden it was voted to return to work on June 4, at an increase in wages of 10 per cent in accordance with a proposition made by President Fuller. The Walden Knife Works strikers also voted to return to work.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

At this time of year our various educational institutions are sending their graduates forth into the more practical experiences of life. Perhaps no single aspect of their educational equipment will serve them to greater advantage than such lessons as they may have received during their school and college days along the lines of self-discipline.

Whatever may be the equipment of any young person, eventual success can only come through self-mastery.

It is on this point that one of the greatest benefits of thrift is based. The amount of money one sets aside or even the amount of time that is gained through the elimination of wasteful moments are secondary in importance to the benefits which thrift practices bring in the development of a strong character.

The young man or young woman entering the practical experiences of life today will find that success or failure depends a great deal on their attitude toward the little things. The processes of self-discipline work through a series of comparatively small conquests. It is not difficult to conquer the small temptations of one's daily routine, and the repetition of these small victories bring one eventually onto the broad highway of great attainment.

Above everything else make, thrift a habit; not in a miserly manner, but along lines that mean progress. Herein lies one of the secrets of life, and wise is he who learns these lessons in the days of his youth.

Although it may require a great effort to accomplish a certain task today, the same accomplishment will be much easier to-morrow and soon the task becomes a customary part of our daily existence. No greater personal asset exists than the habit of thrift. This truth can be taken to heart by all of us, and especially by those who find themselves for the first time face to face with the realities and responsibilities of practical life.

"THE TEMPEST" AT WOODLAND SCHOOL

Shakespeare's Play Creditably Given at Closing of Boys' School—A Natural Setting.

The outdoor performance of Shakespeare's "The Tempest" on May 30, was a delightful feature of the closing of Woodland School for Boys at Phoenixia. The spot selected furnished a natural setting which gave the peculiar features of the Elizabethan stage, with a mountain rising abruptly in the background and a small lake between the players and the audience. The vivid colors of the costumes against the green setting made a beautiful reflection on the surface of the lake.

The marked success of the production is due largely to management of Howard F. Comrie of Johnstown, N. Y.

This exhibition of amateur interest in Shakespeare is significant in connection with the ter-centenary of the publication of the first folio of Shakespeare's plays, in which "The Tempest" occupies the first place.

The guests, including many friends of the school, were entertained after the performance at a tea dance.

Following is the cast of players:

Prospero, the right Duke of Milan... Erwin S. Spink
Alonso, King of Naples... John G. Roberts
Sebastian, his brother... Philip Lee Gill
Ferdinand, son of the King of Naples... Howard F. Comrie
Antonio, brother of Prospero, usurping Duke of Milan... Kail E. Rion
Gonzalo, an honest old counselor... Philip L. Miller
Adrian, a lord... Harry F. Butts
Francisco, a lord... Lincoln T. Miller
Caliban, a savage and deformed slave... Thomas S. Shepperd Jr.
Trinculo, a jester... Allan P. Kirk
Stephano, a drunken butler... George R. Fowler
Miranda, daughter to Prospero... Herbert Von Elm
Ariel, an airy spirit... Edward Bartlett and Chester A. Javne
Nymphs and spirits... William B. Shepperd, Harry F. Butts, Roland Dutch, Lincoln T. Miller

Changes on the Earth.

If the ancient Greeks could revisit the earth they would hardly recognize their beautiful country. If the statements made by one authority can be sustained, Attica has lost the greater part of its forests, the rainfall has decreased and the temperature has increased. The heat in the open air now, it is contended, is so great that the Olympian games of antiquity would be virtually impossible today. Many other parts of the earth show similar changes. The once beautiful oases in the Syrian desert, where Zenobia reigned over Palmyra, is now a desolate waste. In upper Egypt, where only a hundred years ago rain was abundant, drought now usually prevails.

Samuel Rea, President of the Railroad Labor Board.

Open defiance of the Railroad Labor Board by the Pennsylvania Railroad, coupled with the fact that the board apparently has accepted this defiance in weakness and humility, has led official Washington to believe that the board cannot endure much longer. The official execution, according to plans now being perfected by its enemies, will take place soon after the new congress convenes. Labor is bitter because of the manner in which the board has accepted the flat refusal of Samuel Rea, Pennsylvania president, to abide by that body's decisions, and its spokesmen have pointed out that when rail shippers refused last year to accept an award lowering their wages the board branded the shippers' organization as "out-laws."

Eagle Nests Endure.
Describing the bald eagles which make their nests on the desolate islands off South Carolina, Herbert Russell writes in Harper's "There is something characteristic of the great bird itself, and something attractive to the mind, in the performance of the eagle's home. Most birds' nests are ephemeral things. After a few weeks or months they are gone, and not only gone but forgotten. The eagle's home is like an ancestral mansion. It stands year after year, enduring for a longer time than many a man lives, cared for and kept in repair by the winged architects who build it and who seem to have a genuine affection for it. On a plantation near the coast there is a nest in a pine 112 feet above the ground. For more than 50 years the same pair of eagles have inhabited this nest, and it is possible that they will still be living there when houses that men are building today, out of the kind of lumber with which one must now be content, have fallen into ruin."

Heart Twice Normal Size.
Staggering and falling on the sidewalk at Miles Platting, England, an ex-soldier was found, on removal to the infirmary, to be dead. He had been discharged from the British army as medically unfit, and was known as a post-mortem examination indicated that death had been due to valvular disease of the heart. The man's heart being twice the normal size.

"Old Man Eloquent."
"Old Man Eloquent" is an expression first used by Milton in one of his sonnets, in allusion to Isocrates, Athenian orator, who died of grief on hearing of the defeat of the Athenians at Chaeronea. It is also a sobriquet conferred upon John Quincy Adams, sixth president of the United States, in the latter part of his career.

MANY PLANTS CATCH AND DEVOUR INSECTS

One Variety Traps Intruder and Drowns Him—Some Digest Bodies of Prey.

How insects are caught and devoured by plants was described by Prof. Heber W. Youngken of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science.

"There are 500 species of these 'animal-eating' plants scattered over the world," said Professor Youngken. "The leaves are made to allure and capture the animals which are subsequently digested."

The chief "animal-eating" plants, he said, are the sundews, flytraps, pitcher plants, bladderworts and butterworts.

"The sundew," he said, "is represented by 84 species. The whole upper surface of their leaves is covered with reddish glandular tentacles. The terminal glands of these are covered with drops of a viscid secretion which glitters in the sunlight like dewdrops. Insects are attracted by their color and brilliancy. They alight upon the leaf and are instantly entangled in the viscid secretion. In their struggles the orifices of their breathing organs are clogged and they die in a short time of suffocation."

"The fly traps are two in number. The Venus has a rosette of leaves consisting of a winged leaf contracted in front to the mid rib which widens out suddenly into a blade of two symmetrical halves that fold together."

"Along the margin of each are long, stiff, nonirritable bristles which can interlock. On the center of the upper surface are three spine-like sensitive hairs arranged. The sensitive hairs are highly irritable and capable of receiving a stimulus. Over the entire surface of the blade are numerous glandular hairs, which after repeated irritation secrete an acid digestive juice."

"When an insect alights on one of these leaves there is a gradual tightening of the blade until the halves become closely applied, giving the leaf the appearance of a closed, old-fashioned rattrap. The entrapped insect suffocates in the liquid poured out of the glandular hairs."

PORTLAND POLICEMAN LIVES LIFE OF CRIME

Five years of criminal activity while he was a member of the Portland, Ore. police force has been confessed to by Henry E. Travis, an ex-patrolman now under arrest for burglary. Travis was recently discharged from the force for an assault upon a companion in a drunken party. His arrest for burglary followed a few weeks later. When confronted with evidence of guilt Travis admitted that for five years he had combined crime and police work, committing robberies whenever he saw a favorable opportunity, and at all times doing a profitable business in bootlegging as a sideline. On one occasion he robbed a store on his beat of a quantity of expensive bags and suitcases. After carrying them away for hiding he returned, fired four shots at what he later said were fleeing robbers, made a full report to headquarters and posed as quite a hero.

SONS MUST EARN LEGACY

Lawyer's Will Requires Them to Raise Sum Equal to Gift.

The will of Cornelius E. Scott, lawyer of Deposit, N. Y., contains some peculiar provisions. He disposes of $20,000 by direct bequest, the widow receiving $10,000.

A clause in the will provides his two sons by his first marriage, Graydon W. Scott and Curzon Scott, shall not come into their legacies until they have deposited $10,000 which they have earned with the trustee of the estate, any funds which they now have to count in the $10,000. A son and daughter by the second marriage each receive $10,000 in trust.

Close Streets for Children.
The closing of a number of city streets at certain hours of the day, so they may be used as playgrounds by the children, has been advocated by Capt. Michael Glenn, head of the Indianapolis police traffic department.

Push 'Em Both.
"Hit him what a man talks about git him what he gives," said Charcoal Eph, ruminatively. "To all jeez natchelly got 't push one foot out in front of 't other or git stepped on by 't Hard Luck."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

MADE THEM OBEY

Remarkable Power Exercised Over Reptiles by Egyptian.

Incantations Apparently Made Deadly Creatures Responsive to His Will, and Harmless.

"The charmer's name is Mousa," writes a correspondent from Luxor to the London Times. "He drove with us from Luxor, sitting on the box seat of one of the carriages with a basket in his hand which he sufficiently satisfied us was empty; a little man and swarthy, with a brilliant, untrimmed moustache, lean-faced and quick of movement, as perhaps you have to be in dealing with cobras and scorpions and such. Dressed in black, with a white turban on his head, carrying a longish cane in his hand, he led the way—two five English following—amid the rubbish heaps and piles of broken masonry and old mud bricks which litter the dusty plain about the temple of Karnak. As he walked he harangued the world at large, chanting in a high-pitched monotone text, we were told, from the Koran, and powerful incantations taught him by his grandfather. A great man must his grandfather have been. He learned all his lore from Hakim Syed Suleiman himself, a sheik so potent that every snake and scorpion in Egypt knows and trembles at his name today."

"Calling our attention to a particular hole among heaped bits of masonry the little man attacked the orifice from afar with the point of his stick thrusting at it angrily, chipping the sides stirring the dust before it. Then, advancing gingerly and with his flowing sleeves pushed back to leave his lean arms bare reaching out, he picked delicately out of that dust, by the extreme tip of its tail, a wriggling scorpion."

"It was not a large one but large enough—some four or five inches long over all, a greenish-yellow semi-transparent, horrid thing. For a while Mousa played with it for our benefit letting it do its best to sting the calloused tip of his thumb and making it sit motionless at the word of command in Suleiman's dreaded name. Then he placed it on a stone whence it promptly scuttled away. More scorpions followed with the same pantomime in every case. Along the old mud-brick wall of the Romans full on the face of which the sun was beating the snakes came. First a thin gray snake, perhaps three and one-half feet long, hauled struggling out of a hole in the old wall and flung upon the sand at our feet. We were assured that it was abominably poisonous, but from the shape of its head it looked as harmless as a grass snake at home."

"Again he smelled something—perhaps a cobra!—and presently before a group of three holes close together in the wall he stopped with a very fury of exhortation. Every charm that his grandfather ever knew must surely have been invoked as the little man threatened and commanded and thrashed at the wall with his stick."

"After thrusting his stick into one hole after another, he converted to us that the three were connected inside the wall and the snake he gave us to understand, was dodging him from one to another. At last he seemed to have cornered his prey and reaching his bare arm almost to the shoulder deep into one of the black openings he drew out, the reptile doing its best to resist, a struggling cobra getting on for five feet long. It was certainly a formidable looking thing as it slid this way and that over the sand or stopped to rear its head and expand its hood like a uraeus of one of the old Egyptian kings come to life."

"The creature thus unprepared its black tongue flicking in and out of its narrow slit of a mouth Mousa, stooping down before it, slowly reached out his hand. Very gradually, almost imperceptibly, he brought it nearer and nearer to that wicked looking head until it was but six inches away, plainly within striking distance. Then gently, as if in exhausted surrender, the serpent reached forward and softly laid its head in the upturned palm. It was an extraordinarily dramatic curtain to the play."

Timber Situation Serious.

The accessible timber of the world is inadequate to the requirements of civilization, says the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture. We now draw one-third of our paper requirements from Canada. There is an embargo on the export of pulp wood from the crown lands of Canada, and this is likely to be extended to all forest lands in the Dominion, completely shutting off the supply of raw material for the paper industry of the United States. This illustrates the hazard of becoming dependent upon foreign supplies of timber, it is pointed out.

Fringe Restored to Fashion.

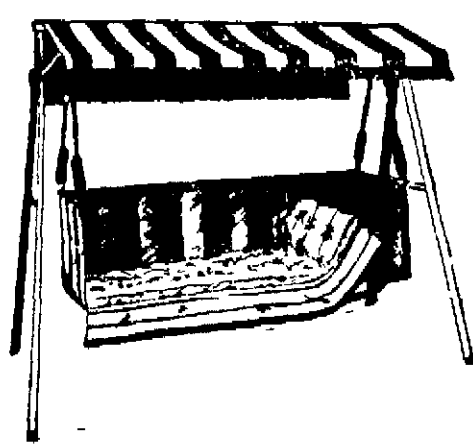

Years ago, British fashion dictated that every woman should wear a fringe of short hair on the forehead. The fringe became so general that mistresses, advertising for servants, stipulated "no fringe." Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon has revived the practice, wearing a fringe about an inch above the eyebrows, says the Daily Express.

Up Go the Taxes.

Taxes on farm land have more than doubled during the last eight years. The average tax per acre in 1922 was 71 cents, as compared with 31 cents in 1914.

Good Advice.

Do not let the empty cup be your first teacher of the blessings you had when it was full. . . . Seek as a plain duty to cultivate a buoyant, joyous sense of the crowded kindnesses of God in your daily life.—Alexander MacLaren.

S.O.P. Women to Have Only National Political Club House

New Home of Women's National Republican Club, 688 East 37th St. New York City

With the announcement of the opening of the first national political club house for women in this country, the curtain rises on the 1924 campaign. More than $100,000 was raised in twenty minutes by Republican women in New York City a few days ago for this new political headquarters.

The Women's National Republican Club has a membership of more than 1200, representing practically every state in the Union. Republican women in all parts of the country are eligible to membership.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabins, president of the Women's National Republican Club, in discussing the significance of this club house said: "This new national club house for Republican women in this country is the logical advance from the days when suffrage pioneers first dreamed of women winning an important place of their own in the political life of the nation. This building stands as a symbol of the permanency and importance of the place which women have achieved in politics in the last decade."

Central Location. The new club house will be ready for occupancy next winter. It is located at No. 6 and 8 East Thirty-seventh street, New York City. It is easily accessible to the Grand Central Terminal and the Pennsylvania station.

The Women's National Republican Club was organized two and a half years ago, with Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore as its first president. Members of the States Representative committee of the club are: Mrs. Samuel O. Prentice, of Connecticut; Mrs. Samuel F. Thurston of Kentucky; Mrs. Guy Gannett of Maine; Mrs. William H. Schofield of New Hampshire; Mrs. Corfeno A. Severance of Minnesota; and Mrs. Henry R. Rea of Pennsylvania. Miss Maude Wearne of Rhode Island is vice-president of the club and Mrs. Reeve Schley of New Jersey is a member of the board of directors.

TEACHER DIES IN SCHOOLROOM

Mrs. Miller, Principal at Clintondale and Kingston Resident, Stricken With Apoplexy Friday.

Mrs. Marguerite Miller, principal of the Clintondale school, where she had been teaching some time, died suddenly in the schoolroom Friday morning. Mrs. Miller, who had not been in the best of health for some time, was stricken with apoplexy shortly after school commenced for the day and expired before aid could be summoned. The remains were brought to this city by undertakers Conner and Valentine, and are being held to await the arrival of a niece who resides in Buffalo. Mrs. Miller formerly resided in Buffalo where her husband, now deceased, was editor of one of the newspapers. For the past two years Mrs. Miller has resided at the home of S. D. Gibson, 77 Pearl street, this city. She was a woman of charming personality, highly educated, and since making her home in this city has made many friends. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

AUTO HIT BOY, BREAKING LEG

Burt Bishop of No. 97 Downs street reported to police headquarters Friday evening that while driving his Hupmobile on Broadway, between O'Neil and Downs streets, he had struck Frank, the 4½ year old son of Harry Adala of No. 23 Henry street, knocking the lad down. He said that he was driving at a speed not exceeding 15 miles an hour when the boy ran in front of the car. Bishop said he tried to steer to the left to avoid hitting the child, which was probably struck by the bumper. Anthony Egoroff, employed at the Benedictine Hospital, who was riding in a car behind the Bishop car, took the lad to the Benedictine Hospital where Dr. W. J. O'Leary found that the boy's left leg was broken just above the ankle and that he had been cut about the lips. His condition today was said to be as comfortable as could be expected. It is said the accident was unavoidable.

Alexander Was Near Perfect Ball Game

Three perfect games have been pitched in modern history—by Charley Robertson, Addie Joss and Cy Young, respectively. By a "perfect game" is meant one in which no opposing batter reaches first base in nine innings.

Which recalls an incident in the pitching life of Grover Alexander of the Cubs. Back in 1912, when a youngster with the Phil-lex, Alex faced Cy Young in one major league season, being connected with the Braves.

The battle was staged at Boston and Alex allowed one hit, Dot Miller, an outfielder, making a swinging bunt and beating it to first. He was the only Brave who reached the base all afternoon.

Alexander captured the game, 1 to 0, John Robert making a hit off Young with a man on base in the ninth and driving the run home.

But for that swinging bunt of Miller's, Grover Alexander might have been another pitcher in modern history to have a perfect game to his credit. And it would have been all the more unique because it would have been made against Young, himself one of the immortals.

Hair Fringed in England.

Years ago, British fashion dictated that every woman should wear a fringe of short hair on the forehead. The vogue became so general that milliners advertising for servants stipulated: "No fringe." Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon has revived the practice, wearing a fringe about as high above the eyebrows, says the Daily Express.

SCHATZMEN PLAY HERE ON SUNDAY

On Sunday, the first Kingston-Poughkeepsie battle of the year will be staged in this city and needless to say there will be plenty of excitement and action. J. William Schatz will bring his warriors to this city to do battle with the Colonials. J. William has had a very successful season so far but the clan of Schrick is resolved to take a fall out of whatever aspirations he may have of having his team crowned, the semi-pro champions of the Hudson valley.

Schatz will have the following men in his line up when the two teams take the field at the Fair Grounds at 3:30: Mullane, c.; Start, ss.; Mosher, rf.; McCarthy, c.; Clark, lb.; Henne, 2b.; Hammill, 1b.; McComb, 3b.; and either Lowe or Deocher will very likely work in the box.

BASEBALL GAMES OVER WEEK END

The following semi-pro games are scheduled in this vicinity for over the week end:

Saturday.
Kingston Colonials vs. Little Falls Bloomer-Girls, at Kingston.
D. & H. Generals vs. Schenectady K. of C., at Watervliet.
Oneonta Giants vs. Mohawk Athletics, at Oneonta.

Grogans of Watervliet vs. Bennington, at Bennington.

ST. JOSEPH'S WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

The final game of the Columbian School Baseball League was played Friday afternoon at the Kingston Fair Grounds, between the St. Joseph's team and the St. Peter's team, resulting in a win for the St. Joseph's aggregation, score 9 to 7. This game gives St. Joseph's the championship of the league, winning the cup for the first year.

Up until the seventh inning the St. Peter's squad had a safe lead, 5 to 2 but the St. Joseph's sluggers got on to Steve Connelly's curves and hammered him for seven runs. St. Peter's made two runs in the last inning. James Hobson was the umpire and was kept exceptionally busy. Of the three games played between the teams St. Joseph's won two, the other going to St. Peter's on a forfeit. St. Joseph's failing to make an appearance.

Cy Williams Is One of Philadelphia Mainstays

Cy Williams is nearly thirty-five years of age and is as hairless as a billiard ball, but he can still play the game. Barring, perhaps, Jim Thorpe, there never was a greater all-around athlete in the big leagues than the potato grower from Three Rivers. While he was learning biology and sociology in Notre Dame he was cracking a lot of records in the hurdles, broad jump and sprints.

Cy will be one of Fletcher's mainstays in Philadelphia this season, just as he has been the mainstay of every team with which he ever played, a mainstay who has never risen to the complete limit of stardom.

The reason lies in his temperament, which is equable and somewhat phlegmatic. Had Williams possessed Ty Cobb's flaming spirit and his own great athletic gift, no player in the country would have achieved a finer record.

British Grenadiers!

Until they were a mile within the German lines a company of English Grenadier guards—under Captain Pryce held out against the German advance on the Lys in April, 1918. The enemy brought up field guns to point-blank range and flattened out the trenches. The survivors of the company stood back to back shooting both ways. At six in the evening 18 men were left. At Captain Pryce's orders these 18 men charged with their bayonets at the Germans 90 yards away. There were no British survivors except a corporal, who owed his life to accidentally falling into a ditch. The story is told in "Sir Douglas Haig's Command," by one of his staff officers.
